'57 CHEVY BECOMES A FIELD COMMAND POST

'57 Chevy — one of the greatest looking automobiles ever, but the MASK HURRICANE '57 Chevy is even more spectacular. Rotate the turret to release hi-rise hydraulics and an extra set of wheels for rugged terrain. Open sunroof armored shield and a gale force wind howitzer projects through the windshield. Mini cutting lasers flip over in the rotating turret, the front grill slides up to reveal a night vision scanner, and headlights extend to become infrared blasters. This field command post is even further armed with a rear sawblade to discourage would-be tailgaters and a terror spare land mine that can be launched with a press of the bumper. An articulated HONDO MAC LEAN figure, the top field lieutenant of MASK, stands in the command box. His removable BLASTER II mask pretends to shoot supersonic laser rays. Ages 4 and up.
